

#BeingBlackMeans

“#Beinginternationalmeans

Being an international student for a few years in Glasgow has widen my perspective about life in general. We were once nothing, then we were brought into existence. We didn't choose how, when, why and where, yet we are given this life to show gratitude and share. We grow into different cultures.. so that we may know one other and celebrate our differences. One race is not superior over another, the white is not superior over the black nor is the black superior over the white.. except by righteousness and piety in the sight of Reality.

So be kind, rectify, reach out and care because we are just one big human family with ample to share. Question our mortality to be closer to reality and so that we may be aware. All praise be to God, the Owner of Majesty and Honour. having to work ten times harder to prove people wrong and achieve your dreams and ambitions”.

-Muhammed Faisal Abdurraheem